J. H. ANDERSON TO LEAVE CITY

Will Engage In Business In a Large Southern City.

NO CHANGE HERE.

Phenomenal Career of Young Merchant Who Came Here 18 Years Ago.

Mr. J. H. Anderson, head of the big mercantile establishment of J. H. Anderson & Co., will leave Hopkinsville July 15, having bought out a big wholesale and retail dry goods business in a southern city of 65,000 population.

The departure of Mr. Anderson will make no change in the business here, which will continue as heretofore, under the active management of the junior partner, Mr. John H. Bell, Jr. Mr. Anderson will remove his home from Hopkinsville and his handsome residence on South Main street will be for sale or rent.

James H. Anderson came to Hopkinsville in August, 1889, from Hartford, Ky., and started a clothing store on a small scale. His business prospered from the start and has grown into mammoth proportions during the last 18 years, and Mr. Anderson has become one of the wealthiest men in Hopkinsville. He is prominent in every progressive movement and his gifts to charity are perhaps larger than those of any two men in the city. He is active in church work, being a deacon of the Baptist church and superintendent of the Sunday school. Mrs. Anderson is the organist and an accomplished musician. His family consists of a daughter, still in school, and a son three years old. The family will be missed from the city's business, social and religious circles, and expressions of general regret are heard on all sides that they are to leave the city.

The concern that he has bought out does a business of $750,000 a year and is constantly growing. It offers larger opportunities and a wider field to Mr. Anderson and his friends confidently expect to see him become one of the merchant princes of the great and growing South. He is a born merchant, a devout christian man, a citizen of the greatest usefulness and his departure from Hopkinsville is a distinct loss, although his interests here will call him frequently to the city. The new building will not be greeted this season, but the business here will be expanded to the fullest capacity of its present quarters and improved in every way.

$8,000 FIRE AT PEMBROKE

Looked Like Wiping The Thriving City Off The Map.

LEAVY, A HEAVY LOSER.

Bucket Brigade And Citizens Saved Town By Hardest Work.

Pembroke had a fire Monday morning at 1 o'clock that threatened to wipe the business portion of the little city off the map.

The fire started in the meat shop of Ed Browning, back of the Miller Block and separated from it by an alley. In the Miller block are the stores of O'Brien & Co., groceries, Blain, groceries and Smith's saloon and the Cumberland Telephone exchanges. A large store room for reserve stock belonging to M. L. Levy was also in the rear of this block. The heaviest loss was on this building and contents, Mr. Levy suffering to the amount of $4,000 with only $500 insurance. It was across the street from his store and was burned to the ground.

The telephone exchange was burned out and communication entirely cut off. O'Brien & Co., grocers, Blaine's grocery and Smith's saloon suffered somewhat by the fire burning out the back doors and windows. Across the street from the meat store where the fire started are the stores of Wood Bros., W. L. Lander, S. A. Powell and M. L. Levy. The fronts of these buildings were ruined by the intense heat, which melted the large plate glass windows like they were sheets of ice.

The loss will amount in the aggregate to about $8,000 with light insurance.

The telephone exchange was put out of business but communication with the outside world was established before noon.

The citizens finally came out to do everything they could to save the enterprising little city from a great conflagration.

The bucket brigade! Why it is a whole team by itself, and largely saved Pembroke's business section. Pembroke does not mind a little $8,000 blaze. She ought to have a fire department, though.

BARN BURNED.

Mysterious Nocturnal Fire Near Fairview.

The tobacco barn of Lee Hancock, near Fairview, was burned Sunday night. Mr. Hancock is an independent grower who sold his tobacco crop last week to a dealer in this city. The barn was empty at the time and the fire can be accounted for upon no other ground than incendiarism. The loss is several hundred dollars.

MUST COME UP TO STANDARD

State Militia Forced to Meet Army Requirements Or Lose Appropriation.

One Hundred Soldiers For Each Congressman And Senator.

Washington, June 12.—Acting Secretary of War Robert Shaw Oliver has addressed an identical letter to the Governors of the States and Territories having militia organizations, calling their attention to the fact that on January 22 next year, under the terms of the Dick Militia Act, the militia organization must conform to that of the regular and volunteer armies of the United States. Therefore Gen. Oliver suggests that it is the duty of the Governors to take necessary steps to secure such conformity in organization by the date named.

Says Gen. Oliver:

"Failure to meet this statutory requirement will result in debarment of a State from the use of the allotment of the annual appropriation of $2,000,000 for the support of the militia."

Attention is called to the fact that the third section of the act imposed the condition that the number of its regularly enlisted, organized and uniformed active militia shall be at least 100 men for each Senator and Representative of the State.

With a view to placing on the statute books of the State an organized military law providing the necessary measure of conformity to the organization now in force in the regular army, or which may hereafter become effective therein, Gen. Oliver suggests to the Governors provisions for any enactment by the Legislatures in brief as follows:

The definition of the duties of the Adjutant General and his assistants and the Quartermaster General and his assistants as laid down in Article 1, War Department Circular Oct. 8, 1903. Provision for the necessary general officers and for a staff made up of adjutant generals, inspector generals, judge advocates general, quartermasters, subsistence, medical, hospital corps, pay engineers, ordnance and signal corps. The guard must be divided into divisions, brigades, regiments, etc., to conform to the regular army organization, to increase the efficiency and to make the companies and number of officers assigned to organizations correspond to the regular army.

OUR FASHION LETTER

For Spring Wear.

What a blessing the new rucked sleeves are for girls with thin arms! Given the right description of lace, or chiffon, and moderate care in the matter of construction, these sleeves cannot fail to be becoming to the arms and hands! Yes, very specially the latter, because sleeves which reach well over the wrists have a happy way of making the hands look wonderfully small and white.

Evening gowns, for quiet parties, of black mousseline de soie, look fascinating when made in the pinfold style, with the bodice drawn up over a transparent blouse of ivory point d'Esprit. This blouse should be cut a little low at the neck, with black ribbons run through a soft tucker of chiffon, and the sleeves should be finely rucked from shoulder to wrist. A gown of this genre, with a waistband of Seville blue mirror velvet and a touch of blue at the breast, could not fail to look charming, and would be exactly the rich thing for dinner wear at one of the big hotels or restaurants.

It is important to realize that tucked sleeves should fit the arms tightly, or practically so; in fact, the pressure of the material on the arms should be sufficiently insistent to keep on the skirt and horizontally placed on the blouse, which is either killed or plainly hemmed or decorated with medallions of black lace. Another good silk petticoat is made in short silk with double-killed founces cut into Vandykes at the edge, no other trimming being vouchsafed. These, too, are particularly suited to the serge dress. For the voile gown I would recommend the lace petticoat. It has a hand-embroidered lawn fillet put on at the top with a heading threaded with ribbon.

For the economical I commend the petticoat of double-width alpaca in black and white check, with a shaped founce trimmed with three graduated rows of black velvet ribbon. It is necessary to buy the very best quality alpaca and then I would guarantee its wear for three seasons. The same virtue, I regret to say, cannot be accredited to any known make of glace silk, nor accorded to any tried brocade or stripes.

And, writing the word stripes, I am tempted to insist again upon their amazing popularity. Not alone are there striped tweeds and striped chambrays and striped silks, but there are striped velvets and crepe de chine, these last looking their best in black when the stripe is of satin, and is really a new edition of our old friend the satin-striped grenadine, but exhibiting much improvement from the softer fabric with which it is allied.

It cannot be truly said that the fashions lean amiably towards the desires of the thrifty, whom I would advise to remain faithful to the tailor-made cloth coat and skirt until the summer is quite established, when under clever home directions plain voiles may be successfully treated in combination with vest and undersleeves of sheer figured net, special trouble being taken to secure the wide armholes of Japanese style, which is, indeed, easy enough to achieve, and is like to enjoy a continued run of popularity. As I have previously said, it is not difficult to manipulate, and will conceal in its hanging folds a few of those defects without which the amateur-made costume is never quite complete.

Minor matters which are just now receiving special attention are belts and buckles, the newest of the latter being of filigree gold raised almost in dome shape and decorated in the center with a single large jewel, amethyst, or olive for choice. The belts are of leather of all colors, soft or shiny of surface, and the elastic belts still intrude in every conceivable color, the newest elastic being of gold and of gold and silver interwoven. The plaid patent leather belt is perhaps more novel than attractive, and to the really slim waist no belt is more becoming than that contrived from a wide piece of ribbon pinned into the center of the back and drawn tightly, through a chased silver or gold buckle in the front. But these are particularly suited to the voile or silk frock, the cloth coat and skirt of our immediate desires call for sterner stuff, and for these leather and kid I would most highly recommend, holding a special brief for those which are shaped slightly in the center at the back and possess only one buckle, that one buckle being set in the front.

One of the Early Victims.

The frog, in a sense, to be as big as the ox, had inflated itself until burst, substantially as related in the standard historical works.

"Hm!" exclaimed the ox. "That's the worst case of exaggerated ego I ever saw."

Meanwhile the frog, as such, had disappeared, and being unable to collect itself it attempted no reply.—Chicago Tribune.

WORLD TOUR OF SIAM'S KING

KING CHULALONGKORN

Out to see the world. The king of Siam by easy stages is going to girdle the earth, and whether the potentate of this little Asiatic kingdom is actuated by a spirit of adventure and longing for some new sight and sensation, or is moved by a deep purpose to know the world better that he may govern his principality more wisely is an open question, but one thing is certain, and that is he is having a royally good time and is making the most of his opportunities wherever he goes.
Paris has just extended the glad hand to him, and is going to help him have a good time as only the P' is-lans can do. No doubt kingly honors and distinction will be showered upon him, but it is not just what he is after, according to persons who are close to his majesty and who say that he specially desires to remain as much Chulalongkorn as possible, as he wants to do much sight seeing and on the quiet
"have the time of his life."

And after Paris is covered from center to circumference, London and other European cities are on his list, after which it is likely that he will come to America and cross to the Pacific coast, where he will embark for the voyage back to his own land and his place at Bangkok.
There is no sovereign in the world who is accustomed to receive more subject homage than his majesty of Siam. He possesses a most imposing string of titles. Among other things he is supreme arbiter of the ebb and flow of the tides, brother of the moon, half brother of the sun and owner of four and twenty golden umbrellas.
Whenever he takes an airing in his own domain his faithful subjects prostrate themselves as he passes by, no matter how muddy the streets may happen to be. Even the highest in the land when they approach his august presence must do so on all fours. His favorite wives have to kneel before him. His brothers do likewise. So King Chulalongkorn is not likely to be much impressed by a crowd that keeps on its legs before him and shouts and waves hats and handkerchiefs at him. He won't bob his head until his neck aches as European kings are expected to do when they show themselves to the public.

As king of Siam, Chulalongkorn has a much easier billet than the occupants of European thrones. He is invested with powers as autocratic as those of the czar of Russia, but his is a paternal despotism which is not tempered by assassination. Siamese folk don't throw bombs, and none of them have yet reached that stage of enlightenment in which monarchs are regarded as costly superfluities.
Chulalongkorn is not required to lead the strenuous life. He can take things as easy as he pleases. His income is something like $10,000,000 a year. His gorgeous royal palace at Bangkok is a walled and battlemented city within a city. Behind the line of not very warlike sentries who guard its massive gates is contained treasure far in excess of the loot obtained by the greatest feat of robbery committed in modern times—the sacking of the summer palace of Peking in 1860. It is really a double palace—an outer and an inner palace. Into the latter no European of the male sex has ever penetrated. It contains a built entirely of glass of varie-gated colors, the plates being joined together by an insoluble cement. It is ornamented with quaint turrets and minarets. When not in use, it floats on the surface of the lake. When the king desires to take his ease within it, accompanied by his harem favorites, he enters the single door, which,

when closed, is air and water-tight.
At a signal certain valves are opened and the house of glass descends to the bottom of the lake. The arrangements for supplying fresh air are perfect. In the hot summer weather it affords a deliciously cool retreat, and there Chulalongkorn is accustomed to while many idle hours away, rejoicing doubtless that fate did not summon him to reign over progressive and civilized people. That famous saying of Shakespeare's: "Uneasy lies the head that wears a crown," does not apply to him.

In accordance with eastern custom he is a much married man. He has a score or two of official wives, and nobody knows just how many hundreds of what might be termed courtesy wives, though in Solomon's time they were known by another name.

How far contact with western civilization has modified Chulalongkorn's religious views nobody knows, but nominally, at least, he adheres to the state religion, which is a decadent form of Buddhism on which many sa-uperstitions have been grafted. The huge palace is girdled by a holy rope which has been blessed by the priests and is, therefore, supposed to form an effective barrier against the fend-ish host whose special prey is royalty and its multitudinous offspring.
It is the Siamese custom to scare demons by demons, somewhat on the principle of setting a thief to catch a thief. The demons employed are huge and hideous effigies. The priests wanted Chulalongkorn, when he ascended the throne, to permit the creation of two of these monstrosities outside the palace gates. But they compromised on the holy rope. Opposite the palace, on the western bank of the river, stands a temple known as Wat Chang, or the "Temple of Dawn," which the king attends for public worship. The wardens are two giant stone figures, male and female, searing nightmarish masks. And the king, skeptical though he may be as to their efficacy, deems it prudent to make an oblation when he passes hence by the temple.

He has visited England once before.
That was in 1897. He wasn't feeling particularly comfortable at that time, for France was threatening to gobble up the biggest portion of his kingdom, and he didn't show himself much in public. It was supposed then that the chief purpose of his visit was to get England to block the French game.
On that occasion he put a visit to the queen at Windsor Castle. He was assigned to a magnificent suite of rooms on the first floor, which corresponds to what Americans would call the second floor. But despite their sumptuous furnishing, it became apparent that his dusky majesty was far from comfortable in them. Then the truth leaked out. It is customary in Siam for the monarch to sleep at the top of the house, "nearest heaven," and that anybody should occupy apartments nearer the realm of the blessed than himself did not accord with his notions of what was due his rank and dignity. So he was shifted to an attached room, though it was necessary that he should not be far from the queen's apartment, for he was more than pleased with the change.

Raven as Mariner's Compass.
Perpetually selected the raven for their standard out of feelings of gratitude, for before the invention of the mariner's compass they must have found him extremely useful. The only method of determining whether land was near was to let loose a raven. If the bird saw land he swam away forever; if he did not he was turned to the ship—London Chronicle.

The Weather.

FOR KENTUCKY—Fair Tuesday.
Most change in temperature.

The Haywood trial at Boise, Idaho, is nearing completion.

Mayor Schmitz, of San Francisco, has been found guilty of grafting.

Wm. Rogers Clay, of Lexington, will succeed Judge Jno. D. Carroll as appellate court commissioner.

Labor agitators from Chicago are in Nashville for the purpose of organizing a union among the negro cooks.

Gus Willson spells his name with an unnecessary letter, but "H" will probably beat the extra "L" out of him in November.

The Paducah News-Democrat's big industrial issue was perhaps the largest paper of the kind ever issued in Kentucky. We do not now recall a bigger or better one.

Miss May Folk, a sister of Gov. Folk, of Missouri, will be married June 25 to Jas. A. Webb, a St. Louis lawyer. The wedding will take place at Brownsville, Tenn.

Deafness Cannot be Cured
by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a running sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result and unless the inflammation can be taken out and the tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed for ever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by Catarrh) that cannot be cured by local applications. Send for circular, free.

The Kentucky Press Association is in session at Estell Springs, and a most enjoyable program has been prepared. Mr. and Mrs. T. C. Underwood and son, of the New Era, and Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Casey, of the Independent, are there from Hopkinsville. About sixty papers are represented.

South Dakota, which is rich silver mines, bonanza farms, wide ranges and strange natural formations, is a veritable wonderland. At Mount City, in the home of Mrs. E. D. ### LAST SERVICE

Heid in Christian Church Until Building is Enlarged.

Rev. H. D. Smith preached his last sermon Sunday night in the old audience room until the building is enlarged.

The Forbes M'f'g Co. were awarded the contract. The plans for enlargement have been spoken of so often in this paper and so many have seen the drawings made by the architect that it is useless to mention them in detail at this time.

Workmen began tearing away the fences, stone work, etc., and cutting down the shade trees Saturday. The work is to be pushed rapidly and to be completed, we learn, by about the first of November. The enlargement and the large pipe organ that will be installed will cost about $17,000.

U. S. COMPLICATION.

Judge Gordon Decides That Foreign Corporation Owned Princeton Factory.

Princeton, Ky., June 14.—Under a decision handed down in the Circuit Court yesterday the Imperial Tobacco Company and not John Orr, becomes the loser by the destruction of the Orr tobacco stemmy in this city on December 1. A judgment was given in favor of Orr and against the Imperial Company for $13,000, the purchase price of the property.

Orr sold the stemmy to the Imperial Company on Nov. 14, and made a deed to the property, but it was not accepted at once, and before it could be put on record a band of masked men invaded Princeton, setting fire to the stemmy. The plant was burned and the Imperial Company declined to pay Orr the price agreed upon, claiming that he had not made delivery of the property. The court held to-day that the delivery and sale was a good one, and that the Imperial Company was the owner at the time of the fire. The case will be appealed.

THE PROBLEM OF FLIGHT.

As surely as anything can be foreseen, the conquest of the air seems to be assured within a reasonable time in the future. The world seems to be trembling upon the very verge of the secret of aerial navigation. The solution of the problem may be extremely simple, and discovered by accident by a yokel, or it may be extremely complex, worked out with extreme labor by scientific investigators. The discoverer of the last link that will join mankind to the upper world may be classed now among dreamers and cranks, or he may be already famous among physicists. Other great discoveries have been given to the world, as a rule, by unknown and often despised men. If this experience were a guide, it might be predicted that the man who finally solves the problem of flight will be poor and obscure. But there is no rule governing such matters, and speculation is vain.—Washington Post.

SLANG OF OTHER DAYS.

Slang has always been a fruitful source for the expansion of language, and instances may be multiplied of words now respectable which were once tabooed as vulgarisms. But, on the other hand, there have been many slang phrases in use for centuries which have never become acceptable to the purists. As long ago as 1750, the celebrated letter writer Horace Walpole used to speak of "sitting grizzling" and getting "drunk as an owl." Then again, in the diary of one of the most prominent women writers of the eighteenth century, Frances Burney, are found good slang phrases of the American college girl of to-day, as for instance: "I sneaked out," "Did you ever know such a toad?" and "I had a vile cold."—Sunday Magazine.

MINIDOKA DAM, IDAHO.
PAID PRODUCTS OF YAKIMA VALLEY.

Vast regions of the west transformed from a dreary waste to fruitful fields pouring forth their wealth of golden grains and ripened fruits; and water the magician whose marvelous touch has wrought the transformation. Such is the story of the reclamation service of the United States government. The full importance of this work is obtainable only by comparison.

The 25 projects upon which the government is now engaged, when developed to their full extent, will add 5,198,000 acres to the crop-producing area of the United States. Add to these 13 other projects which are held in abeyance, pending the completion of the first mentioned, and which will reclaim 2,270,000 acres, and we have a grand total of 6,468,000 acres. This enormous area to-day is practically worthless. It returns revenues neither to the states in which it is located, nor to the nation to which it largely belongs. It is utilized only a short period in each year for grazing nomadic herds that are driven over it. Potentially, it is the richest, the most fertile and productive land in the world, and is capable of supporting in comfort an agricultural population as dense as can be found in any of the older settled parts of our country. By expending $60,000,000 on the 25 engineering works now in process of construction, the reclamation service will reclaim 3,125,000 acres, of a cultivated area equal to the total acreage in crops in the four states of Connecticut, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, and Florida. The diversified crops, enormous yields from irrigated lands, and the excellent prices for all farm products in the west warrant the assumption that this land will return annually an income larger than the farmers receive in the four states named. For comparison, let us say that the revenues per acre will be the same. It is apparent, then, that this area reclaimed will each year increase the value of farm crops by $60,000,000; it will add $232,000,000 to the taxable property of the people; it will furnish homes for 30,000 families on farms and in villages and towns.

Although only four years have passed since the enactment of the reclamation act, to-day employed upon the construction of 25 great projects in 14 states and two territories. The expenditures average more than $10,000,000 a year. Three of the great projects are practically completed, and six more will be in service this summer. On many of the projects the work goes forward night and day, and the rate of progress is strikingly at variance with that at which government work usually proceeds.

There is, of course, a reason for this. The reclamation service is absolutely divorced from politics; it is a business organization and its motive is to build engineering works and to erect an empire in the desert.

The reclamation fund available for the 25 projects now under way amounts approximately to $33,000,000. Before these are completed it will be about $41,000,000. When this has been expended, 1,400,000 acres will have been reclaimed and will begin to return annually $4,000,000 to the fund. Chief among the big irrigation undertakings are the Salt river project in Arizona; the Minidoka project in Idaho; the Yakima valley project in Washington, which is now in several units but will be eventually embracing 400,000 acres; the Rio Grande project in New Mexico; the Huet project in Montana and in Wyoming the great Shoshone project in Idaho. Some of the most engineering feats: the Uncompahgre project in Colorado, and the unique project in Oregon and California called the Klamath project.

Some of the work of the reclamation service to January 1, 1907, shows that it has dug 1,267 miles of canals, or nearly the distance from Washington to Omaha. Some of the canals carry whole rivers, like the Truckee river in Nevada, and the North Platte, in Wyoming. The tunnels excavated are in number, and have an aggregate length of 94 miles. The service has erected 94 large structures, including two great dams in Nevada and the Minidoka dam in Idaho, 90 feet high and 650 feet long. It has completed 670 headworks, flumes, etc. It has built 376 miles of wagon road in mountainous country and into heretofore inaccessible regions. It has erected and in operation 727 miles of telephones. Its own cement mill has manufactured 76,000 barrels of cement and the purchased amount is 312,000 barrels. Its own sawmills have cut 3,036,000 feet, board measure, of lumber, and 6,540,000 feet have been purchased. The surveying parties of the service have completed topographic surveys covering 10,970 square miles, an area greater than the combined areas of Massachusetts and Rhode Island. The transit lines had a length of 15,500 linear miles, while the level lines run amount to 24,218 miles, or nearly sufficient to go around the earth.

The diamond drillings for dam sites and canals amount to 47,515 feet, or more than nine miles. To-day the service owns and has at work 1,154 horses and mules. It operates nine locomotives, 223 cars, and 23 miles of railroad, 39 stationary engines and 27 steam engines. It has constructed and is operating five electric light plants. This work has been carried on with the following force: Classified service, 386, including Washington office; laborers employed directly by the government, 3,500; laborers employed by contractors, 6,100; or a total of 10,000. The expenditures now total about $1,000,000 per month. The excavations of earth and rock amount to 33,000,000 cubic yards, or about one-fourth the estimated yardage of the Panama canal. As a result of the work of the reclamation service, eight new towns have been established, 100 miles of branch railroads have been constructed, and 10,000 people have taken up their residence in the desert.—C. J. Blanchard, Statistician, U. S. Reclamation Service.

THOUGHT IT CASE OF "BAT."

Condition of Senator Curtis Made Theory Reasonable.

Much has been written about the Indian blood of Charles Curtis, the new senator from Kansas, but Mr. Curtis' experience as a householder in Washington must have a tendency to obliterate the memory of his "flaming" ancestor, sitting in majestic pride before the open fire of his forefathers.

One night, when Mr. and Mrs. Curtis returned from the theater, it was discovered that the latch key had failed of transfer to his evening clothes' pockets, and no amount of prolonged pressure on the front door bell could elicit a response from the darkened house.

Finally Mr. Curtis attempted to climb the back fence and force a pantry window. It was no time to remember one's copybook maxims, and Mr. Curtis looked about looking for the cinder drench of a half-filled ash can he descended. Then Mr. Curtis and the ash can gave an imitation of the little pig who hid in his churn and rolled down hill to escape the wolf.

When the new senator returned to the front steps, where his wife sat patiently waiting, Mrs. Curtis was unreasonable enough to ask which part of the can had given the black eye. "We'll go to the hotel for the rest of the night," was his firm rejoinder. In the early morning they stole out from the hotel and took a car bound for the home, where children and cook were sure to be astir by this time. The car was filled with men and women going to work, who regarded the advent of a couple, evidently from the merriment of life, with primitive candor curiosity. For Mrs. Curtis, although having the worried, maternal expression natural to a night away from the children, was in irreproachable theater apparel, while the senator's garments were symbolic of humility, being still begrimed with the product of his intimacy with the ash can, and it had become necessary to sandbag his affected eye. Senator and Mrs. Curtis sat themselves down grimly in a corner. Suddenly a voice from the other end uttered the car number: "I wonder where she found him, Mac?" It said. The soul of the "big chief" within Senator Curtis struggled with the sense of humor, and the sense of humor won.—Human Life.

THE VALUE OF PERSONAL KNOWLEDGE

Personal knowledge is the winning factor in the culminating contests of this competitive age and when of ample character it places its fortunate possessor in the front ranks of

The Well Informed of the World.

A vast fund of personal knowledge is really essential to the achievement of the highest excellence in any field of human effort.

A Knowledge of Forms, Knowledge of Functions and Knowledge of Products are all of the utmost value and in questions of life and health when a true and wholesome remedy is desired it should be remembered that Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna, manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co., is an ethical product which has met with the approval of the most eminent physicians and gives universal satisfaction, because it is a remedy of

Known Quality, Known Excellence and Known Component Parts and has won the valuable patronage of millions of the Well Informed of the world, who know of their own personal knowledge and from actual use that it is the first and best of family laxatives, for which no extravagant or unreasonable claims are made.

This valuable remedy has been long and favorably known under the name of—Syrup of Figs—and has attained to worldwide acceptance as the most excellent family laxative. As its pure laxative principles, obtained from Senna, are well known to physicians and the Well Informed of the world to be the best we have adopted the more elaborate name of—Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna—as more fully descriptive of the remedy, but doubtless it will always be called for by the shorter name of—Syrup of Figs—and to get its beneficial effects, always note, when purchasing the full name of the Company—California Fig Syrup Co.—printed on the front of every package, whether you call for—Syrup of Figs—or by the full name—Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna.

A WOMAN'S BACK

The Aches and Pains Will Disappear if the Advice of This Hopkinsville Citizen is Followed.

A woman's back has many aches and pains. Most times it's the kidney's fault. Backache is really kidney ache; that's why Doan's Kidney Pills cure it. Many Hopkinsville women know this. Read what one has to say about it:

Mrs. J. J. Coombs, 1226 South Virginia street, Hopkinsville, Ky., says: "For a great many years I suffered from a persistent aching across my loins and through my kidneys. At times my back was so bad I could hardly turn in bed; I could not lie on my back without putting my hand under it, for in this way it seemed to relieve the pain. A friend of Mr. Coombs told him about Doan's Kidney Pills and he got a box for me at L. A. Johnson & Co's drug store. On using them, I steadily improved until the dreadful aching was relieved and I could attend to my household duties without inconvenience. Doan's Kidney Pills did more for me than any other medicine I ever used, and I heartily recommend them."
